DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claim 24 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Thompson (2003/0058997).

With respect to claim 24, Thompson shows an imaging system comprising a plurality of emission radiation detectors arranged to define an imaging region (PET system, shown in Figs. 9 and 10), and a radiation shield positioned on one end of the imaging region wherein said radiation shield includes a non-circular subject receiving aperture (paragraph [0024]).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 1-23 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Thompson (2003/0058997), in view of Wong et al. (5,825,031).

With respect to claims 1-23, Thompson discloses a shield member for blocking radiation from outside the field of a PET system, while leaving an aperture for a subject (Fig. 2). With respect to the injection of a radioisotope and coincidence detecting means, conventional PET systems use an injected radioisotope and coincidence means for detecting emitted radiation within a preselected temporal window. Thompson further describes a conventional shield member mounted on a PET system ("Neurological Insert", paragraph [0005]). Further, Wong shows a fixed shield plate that is adapted for the body part being imaged (Fig. 9, column 9, lines 37-54). Although, neither Thompson nor Wong explicitly disclose an elliptical aperture, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to adapt a shield member to be the shape of a subject being imaged, in order to introduce the subject to the PET system, while blocking radiation from an outside source, as this is a conventionally known source of noise in scans of this type. The elliptical shape would be obvious, as it would be roughly the required shape to introduce a patient (who are approximately elliptical in cross-section) fully into the system without providing too much extra space for the introduction of external radiation.

Conclusion

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
